Scranton Man Was Married Only 3 Days

A BRIDEGROOM of three days was killed instantly yesterday at 5:50 p.m., one-half mile south of Mount Pocono on Route 196. His death was the seventh in 10 days and the 14th in Monroe County since January.

The victim was James Esgro, 22, of 350 Ferdinand St., Scranton.

Trooper Phillip Bohr, Mount Pocono State Police, said Esgro was traveling south and lost control of the car as he rounded a curve under an underpass.

Esgro traveled an estimated 600 feet swerving from one side of the road to the other before he sideswiped a station wagon operated by John Plucinski, of 1332 Chase St., Camden, N.J., and crashed into guard rails along the road.

The Esgro car uprooted five guard rails and laid two flat on the ground. The guard rails are made of steel.

Passengers in the Plucinski car were Mrs. Mary Plucinski, Patrick O'Keefe, Camden, N.J.; Frank Rilli and Mrs. Elvira Rilli, both of Lake Park, Fla. There were no injuries to the people in the car.

Plucinski told police that he saw the Esgro car coming down the highway "fishtailing". He tried to drive off the road to avoid a crash but he was sideswiped before he could get off the highway.

State Police, Monroe County Deputy Coroner Daniel G. Warner and a clergyman went to the resort where Esgro's wife was staying to tell her of the accident. Shortly after they informed her she ran to the porch of the cottage and screamed hysterically, "My husband is dead. He was killed. Why?" Later she cried, "Jimmie I love you so. Why did you have to die?"

A doctor was summoned to the resort to administer sedatives to Mrs. Evelyn Esgro, the bride of three days.

On the scene aiding Trooper Bohr with the investigation was Monroe County Deputy Coroner John C. F. Foelker.

Trooper Bohr estimated the Esgro car was a total loss and approximately $400 damages to the Plucinski station wagon.

Met May Reopen Season

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera has assured Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg that it will try to reinstate its 1961-62 season if union troubles are ironed out, it was disclosed Monday.

A spokesman for the local musicians' union said it had received a telegram from Goldberg informing the union of the Metropolitan's assurances.

Goldberg said he has accepted the Met's statement in good faith and called for intensified negotiations on the musicians' contract.

The Metropolitan management recently canceled the coming season, after failure to reach agreement with the musicians in a pay dispute.

Goldberg entered the dispute after President Kennedy expressed concern over the cancellation and one noted singer, Leontyne Price, made his public appeal: "Send us Goldberg."

Goldberg got the opera's statement of its new position from Anthony A. Bliss, president of the Metropolitan Opera Association, at a meeting Sunday in Denver, Colo.

The secretary told Alfred J. Manuti, president of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians, that Bliss assured him that Met Director Rudolf Bing and the opera board of directors "are anxious to avoid any interruption in the Metropolitan season."

Goldberg said he was assured "if agreement is quickly reached in the present dispute, the Metropolitan will operate providing it is able at this time to obtain the necessary singers to assure a successful season."

Goldberg's telegram urged the musicians to accept Bliss' statement "as a good faith assurance that the Metropolitan will make every effort to enroll its artists and consequently to proceed with the season."

The union had made the assurance of a 1961-62 season a condition of agreement on any contract with the opera management.

VICE PRESIDENT RETURNS — Vice President Lyndon Johnson gets a welcoming kiss from his wife at Andrews AFB near Washington, D. C. He returned to the capital to report to President Kennedy on his 36-hour visit to West Berlin. (AP Wirephoto)

Two Chiefs Huddle For Almost Hour

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy pledged Monday to maintain the freedom of West Berlin.

The President renewed this pledge after receiving a first-hand report from Lyndon B. Johnson on the vice president's flying mission to Germany.

Kennedy met with Johnson for almost an hour immediately after returning to the White House from an abbreviated weekend in Hyannis Port, Mass.

Johnson, who arrived back in Washington before noon, went to Kennedy's office shortly after the President's return to report on his observations and meetings during his two-day journey to Bonn and West Berlin.

Expresses Gratitude

After their conference, Kennedy expressed gratitude to Johnson for the vice president's "remarkably successful and important" mission.

Kennedy said Johnson's report added to the government's recognition that "we are going to pass through difficult weeks and months to maintain the freedom of West Berlin."

"But maintain it we will," he said.

Johnson had said earlier that he was confident his journey had produced tighter links between West Germany and the other Western allies.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk also participated in the White House conference, as did the vice president's traveling companions —retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former U.S. military commander in Germany, and Charles E. Bohlen, special assistant to Rusk and an expert in Soviet affairs.

Kennedy said Johnson's report emphasized the confidence and trust the people of West Berlin place in the United States and the heavy responsibilities that relationship places upon this country.

Johnson said his whirlwind trip was a "most stimulating and inspiring experience." He described his talks with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt as "useful and fruitful—and I think they will be productive."

Common Effort

Kennedy pledged in a message made public during the day a "common effort for a just and peaceful settlement in Germany."

Johnson returned with a report that the Communist threat to Berlin "is very real."

The vice president added that the threat, intensified with barbed wire barricades, "is but a part of the continuing struggle between the world of freedom and the world of coercion."

Coincident with his return, the State Department released a message from Kennedy to a world labor federation in which the President said events in Berlin "strikingly underline the seriousness of the long struggle" for the protection of freedom, human rights and self-determination.

High Voltage Wire Kills Three Airmen

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP)—Three air force enlisted men were electrocuted Monday and a fourth was critically burned as the boom of a crane touched a high voltage wire at the Crawford county fairgrounds on the outskirts of this northwestern Pennsylvania town.

A fifth member of the crew escaped unharmed.

The men were preparing a twin engine Voodoo fighter for exhibition.

The air force identified two of the dead as Airman 1.C. Frank Komar, 41, whose wife, Frances, lives in Springfield, Ohio, and Airman 1.C. Robert L. Blair, 33, a missile maintenance man, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Blair live in Hancock, Vt.

The third victim later was identified as Airman 1. C. Frederick J. Gans, 26, of Galesburg, Ill., who was divorced.

S. Sgt. William A. Brookins, 27, whose wife, Mary Ann, lives in Fairborn, Ohio, suffered from severe shock.

S. Sgt. William L. Call of Fairborn, Ohio, was the fifth crewman, who escaped uninjured.

The men were from the Wright-Patterson air force base at Dayton, Ohio. They were members of an orientation group who frequently take air force planes out for public exhibition.

The plane was hauled here in a low, flat-bed truck. A crane was on another truck.

"This is the service to be in, my boy," one of the air force men said to a youngster watching the airmen move their crane into position.

An eyewitness, Samuel Petrillo of Meadville, said:

"I hollered to the fellows 'hey, you better not get your boom near that high tension wire.' One of them replied, 'we'll be careful.' "

Seconds later came a blinding flash. One airman appeared frozen to the side of the airplane. The others were on the ground.

The electrical system in the plane caught fire. So did tires on the two trucks. Firemen, stationed at the fair on its opening day, quickly doused the flames and helped in the rescue efforts.

Electrical service at the scene was disrupted for hours.

Nobody Dares Tell Winnie About Cigars

The elder statesman arrived at the airport with his usual thick cigar. The cigar was unlit.

As he walked to his plane to fly to Nice for a two-week vacation, Sir Winston lit up. Blue smoke billowed around him.

Airport officials, who hold that smoking on the way to a plane is a cardinal offense, stared aghast. They choked in the smoke but no one said a word.

The smiling 86-year-old Sir Winston passed within inches of the jet airliner's wing and a fuel overflow pipe.

As he ascended the gangway, he stopped, turned around and nonchalantly flicked the cigar to the ground.

As officials backed off, a photographer rushed forward, stamped his foot on the smouldering cigar and put it out.

Said a policeman on duty: "We are always concerned about Sir Winston's cigar, but who would dare tell him to put it out? It was a bit worse than usual this time."

Tunisia Urges UN Oust All French Units

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Tunisia pleaded with the U.N. General Assembly Monday to help it force French evacuation of the Bizerte naval base and all Tunisian territory.

The Soviet Union gave quick support of the Tunisian stand. A speech by Platon D. Morozov, Soviet delegate, widened out into an attack on foreign-held bases throughout the world especially those of the United States.

Mongi Slim, veteran Tunisian diplomat here to argue Tunisia's case, asked the assembly to require France to pull back its troops from battle positions around Bizerte city and then negotiate with Tunisia on a program for quitting the Bizerte base entirely.

Slim appealed to the United States and its allies to join in pressing for the withdrawal of French forces from Tunisia just as they did when they voted last year for withdrawal of Belgian forces from the Congo.

Not Scheduled

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson was not scheduled to give his answer until Tuesday morning. Informants said the U.S. position at this time is to abstain on the resolution aimed at France and sponsored by 32 countries—31 African-Asian nations and Yugoslavia.

Morozov charged that France, Britain and the United States, working as North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies, prevented effective Security Council action to halt what he called France's aggression against Tunisia.

The three countries occupy military bases in Asia, Africa and Latin America, the Soviet delegate said.

"Theyy are seedbeds of international strife and foundations for colonialism serving only an aggressive purpose," he said.

He charged that the United States maintains its Guantanamo base in Cuba and other bases in Latin America as threats to Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government in Cuba. He accused the United States of using bases in Pakistan, Iran and Turkey in a program described by Moscow last week of scorching the earth on the Soviet Union's southern borders.

Civil Rights Objections Block Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Objections from both sides of the civil rights fence Monday bogged down a Senate maneuver aimed at extending the life of the federal Civil Rights Commission.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., moved to suspend the rules so the commission extension could be offered as an amendment to a pending appropriations bill. Legislation can not be put into a money bill unless the rules are suspended by two-thirds of the senators present and voting.

Southern senators assailed the motion at great length because they don't want any civil rights legislation. And some Northern Republicans were just as unhappy because they want a great deal more of such legislation.

After several hours of talk, it became apparent that a vote on the motion to suspend the rules would not be reached Monday and perhaps not Tuesday.

Offers Motion

In offering his motion, Mansfield said he wants a two-year extension of the life of the commission, now scheduled to expire Nov. 9. But he added he will oppose any further suspensions of the rules for introduction of other civil rights amendments backed by forces led by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., the minority leader, joined Mansfield in backing the suspension for the commission amendment. He indicated he might favor further suspensions to permit other amendments but there seemed to be no chance of these being voted without Mansfield's support.

Under questioning by Javits, Mansfield said he was resorting to the rules-suspension technique to keep the commission alive because he believes a pending bill to do this never will get out of the Judiciary Committee. That group is headed by Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., a persistent foe of civil rights legislation.

Tough Policy In Works

Big 3 Military Ready For Any Border Trouble

BERLIN (AP) — The Western Big Three decided Monday to lift a military fist every time the East German Communists start to tinker with a Berlin border trouble spot.

British tanks and infantrymen deployed in a tricky area where their sector joins the East German zonal border to put this kind of tough thinking into effect. It was at Staaken, not far from the point where a highway leaves West Berlin for Hamburg, West Germany.

East Germans had started work there—under guard of Communist police, militiamen and eight armored personnel carriers—to reinforce long-neglected barbed wire fences and plug holes that once meant freedom for East German refugees fleeing to West Berlin.

The British promptly brought out a full company of 120 infantrymen, four Centurion tanks, some three-inch mortars and a 120mm antitank gun to keep watch. They established machine gun and observation posts along a two-mile line.

Maj. Gen. Sir Rohan Delacombe, the British commandant, surveyed the situation across the border from a position only 12 feet from a Communist armored vehicle. He commented that, while the Eastern forces have a right to be where they are, the Western allies have the right to be close enough to see what they are up to.

The British garrison will do this every time there is similar activity along the border between the British sector and the Communist zone, the general said.

A spokesman for the French forces said "each power is responsible for its own territory" and indicated the French were equally alert.

A spokesman of the newly reinforced U.S. garrison, which guards the American sector, said the American forces are "just as much on the ready."

The idea was described as intended to lift the morale of the Germans living in border areas, to remind the soldiers with such exercises that they are on front line duty and to show the Communists they are facing a positive military force.

The prompt Allied reaction fit into the pattern of the past weekend when U.S. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson — acclaimed with cheers, flowers and a mingling of laughter and tears — pledged preservation of West Berlin's freedom "no matter what course this crisis will run."

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who told Johnson his visit was a big success, plans a personal survey of the situation here Tuesday. Adenauer telegraphed President Kennedy his thanks for sending Johnson.

Having poured out their enthusiasm for the display of Western backing, the West Berliners settled back to watching and waiting for developments. Among both official circles and ordinary citizens there was open hope that the Western powers and the Soviet Union would eventually reach a top-level conference, perhaps a summit of chiefs of state, to deliver Berlin from its perennial crises.

Many people shared the belief that the Johnson visit and the evident Western will to resist Communist encroachments had put the Berlin situation into deep freeze until after the West German election Sept. 17.

County Commissioners Must Play Bigger Role

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Two officials — one on the state level, the other a county official — told Pennsylvania county commissioners Monday they must prepare to play a bigger role in government in the next 10 to 20 years.

"Rome died when local government failed," Dr. William D. McClelland, chairman of the Allegheny County Board of Commissioners, declared.

He told the 75th annual convention of the State Association of County Commissioners that Pennsylvanians "cannot allow supergovernment to infringe upon the constitutional rights of local government."

"We are the grass roots level and should be proud of it," the county official said, "for it has been the grass roots strength and influence that has kept our nation strong."

McClelland listed several reasons for the renewed importance of county government. He cited the population shift from rural to urban communities, the "mushroom growth" of these urban communities outside the city limits and the inability of boroughs and townships to handle this additional population.

"The county government, far from being outmoded or obsolete, is assuming once more its historical status as the great source of local vitality," he said.

A state senator addressing delegates at the opening business session took the same view as McClelland.

"County government will play a more important role in the lives of the people as time marches on," asserted Sen. George Stevenson of Lock Haven, chairman of the state local government commission. He called for more cooperation on the county level in handling bigger responsibilities.

There are 10 other associations on the county level, Stevenson said, and commissioners "must learn early that teamwork is of paramount importance to legislative accomplishments."

Stevenson addressed the commissioners after Edmund H. Reif, president of the association, presented him with an award for his work with the Local Government Committee.

Miss Alpern Wins Senate Confirmation

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Senate Monday confirmed Atty. Gen. Anne X. Alpern to fill a vacancy on the State Supreme Court—making her the first woman in state history to hold such a post. The vote was 34-14.

Miss Alpern succeeds former Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones, who retired in July after 16 years' service on the high court. The post carries an annual salary of $30,000.

The new justice will serve an interim term expiring Jan. 1. She has been named by the state Democratic organization as its candidate in the Nov. 7 municipal election for a full 21-year term on the high court.

Miss Alpern's appointment had been pending in the Senate since July 31.

Signs Bill To Oust N.Y. School Board

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York legislature approved and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller promptly signed Monday night a bitterly contested emergency bill ousting the New York City Board of Education and mandating sweeping reforms for the scandal-ridden school system.

Minority Democrats, torn by internal New York City political strife, fought angrily against some details of the bill but, in the final vote, all but a handful of them supported it.

The assembly vote as the one-day special session wound up was 137-7. The Senate vote was 54-0.

The six-hour session brought loud wrangles over Democratic charges the Republican governor was playing politics with New York City schools.

Defense Dept. Set To Hire Extra 10,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department authorized the military services Monday to hire an extra 10,000 civilian workers as part of the new U.S. defense buildup.

This will increase the military's nonuniformed manpower ceilings to 1,050,000.

It will supplement President Kennedy's request to add 133,000 to the regular military forces and for authority to call up 250,000 reserve in order to face the new Soviet menace.

The new civilian increases will be allocated as follows:

Army 3,937; Navy 4,437; Air Force 1,437 and office of the secretary of defense 189.

The Defense Department said the Army increase will be for expanded support of training centers, supply depots and Army ordnance activities.

The Navy increase provides for a buildup in shipyards and overhaul and repair facilities at naval air stations.

The Air Force increase is for base and Air Force maintenance requirements associated with the airborne alert.

The Defense Department increase is primarily for the defense communications plus other small adjustments within the department.

The Pentagon added that it has under consideration further increases in the civilian manpower ceilings.

Bulletin

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania's Democratic and Republican leaders Monday night failed to agree on how to end a stalemate over reapportioning of the state's congressional districts.

"We got nowhere so far as I can see," GOP State Chairman George I. Bloom said after a nearly two-hour, closed-door meeting in Gov. Lawrence's office. It was the second meeting in five days aimed at trying to hammer out an agreement.

Bloom and his Democratic counterpart, Otis B. Morse, couldn't even agree afterward on what positions were presented by the two parties inside the meeting.

Check Needs Now

DOWN through the years the ever increasing uses of aluminum have brought it into public prominence as a durable, weatherproof material with endless uses in and around the home and business. A list of these products handled locally by Zahorik and Roberts would be quite lengthy.

Allen Zahorik and Elwood Roberts point out that now is the time to look over your outdoor needs. Windows, doors, rain gutters and downspouts should be carefully inspected.

If replacement is needed, look to aluminum! Many people are replacing old rotted and warped primary windows with sturdy, good looking aluminum ones. No sash weights are required and the new units install easily with no special changes in the window opening.

Windows may be raised and lowered easily and special friction slide channels hold window open or closed to any degree. They are available with full or half screens or with integrated combination storm windows.

Another item which keeps the concern of Zahorik and Roberts on the move is the new aluminum gutters, downspouts and accessories. The big news is that they are now available with white baked enamel finish.

Aluminum siding with Bak-R-Foam insulation is another material winning many friends. This material ends the job of constant painting and repainting and also insulates against heat and cold.

If you have an outdoor protection problem, chances are there's a product made to fill your needs. Just call Zahorik and Roberts at HA 1-4472 or HA 1-1145! They'll be glad to help you!

ON THE HOUSE

SINCE THE MAIL has been heavy lately with questions about painting, both interior and exterior, here are some random thoughts that should answer most of the queries:

Before applying a brush or roller, remove all hardware and lower all ceiling fixtures if you want an especially neat result.

When inside wall patches have been made, the patched areas should be given a priming coat before the finish coat.

In using a brush, about one-third of the bristles should be dipped. In using a roller, be sure to remove the excess paint by rolling against the shallow end of the roller tray.

Cabinets should be painted by starting at the top and working down. The insides should be painted first, then the exterior sides, then the fronts.

Always do the ceiling before the walls.

No exterior painting job will be a success unless all loose and scaling paint has been removed with a scraper or wire brush, all nail holes puttied and all loose joints caulked.

Painting should begin at the top of the house at an upper corner, working downward from there and covering about six feet in width.

In painting clapboard, work across it, doing the edges first and the flat areas between boards.

Remember that masonry and some types of siding and wood shakes are porous and therefore may require more than one coat.

Avoid paint failures such as alligatoring, cracking and wrinkling by using good quality paint, allowing sufficient drying time between coats and applying the paint evenly.

Outside painting should be done when the temperature is above 50 degrees Fahrenheit and preferably near 70 degrees, although the temperature can be considerably higher than that if the humidity is not too great.

To prevent the sun from drying the paint too rapidly, paint the side of the house that is in the shade, then follow the sun around so that you are always painting where the sun already has been.

Because exterior paint is constantly at the mercy of the elements, it is even more important to be certain that it is of good quality than with interior paint.

Give Your Furnace The Proper Care

BEWARE of the "gyp-artist" at furnace cleaning time. You may find yourself paying for a lot of material and service that you don't need or don't get.

Do, however, give your furnace the care it deserves.

Warm air systems constantly circulate air and deposit dust and dirt particles in air ducts, register and other parts of your heating system. Whether it has a blower or operates on the gravity principle, it draws the room air from the floor through the registers and filters, then collect the dust particles.

Just as a vacuum cleaner needs emptying . . . so does your heating system, and it pays to have it done every year.

"Gyp Artists"

Beware of the "gyp artist" in furnace cleaning however. The heating industry has been hurt by fast-talking so-called "experts." They quote a low price and then bill for extra work not previously discussed.

Oftentimes too, they tell you falsely that your furnace is in terrible condition and requires major repairs. This of course is their "in" to sell you a new heating plant.

Your local Lennox dealer, Stroudsburg Furnace Co. of W. Main St., Stroudsburg, are experts in the field of heating and have been designated as "Comfort Craftsmen" by the Lennox people.

No new name in the industry, Lennox has been in the heating and air conditioning business for well over 50 years . . . and Stroudsburg Furnace Co. too have been in the business for many, many years.

A phone call to Stroudsburg Furnace (phone HA 1-8610 or HA 1-3891) will get you fast competent advice on your furnace problems.

Doors Must Fit Design Of House

ARCHITECTS and decorators know the right door style helps set the mood and character of a house.

A traditional or Colonial home, for example, calls for the use of wood panel doors throughout since they were key elements in original versions of these still-popular architectural styles.

Adding the authentic touch of wood panel doors to a home is no problem today. Building supply dealers carry a wide selection of ponderosa pine doors that are faithful reproductions of hand-crafted Colonial designs.

School Demolition Action Postponed

EAST Stroudsburg Borough School Board withheld action last night on the demolition of the old high school building, No. Courtland St., because all members of the board were not present.

Present, however, was representation of the East Stroudsburg Taxpayers League. They were informed that no immediate action was to be taken, and there were no plans at present to erect a new building when the old school was torn down.

The demolition of the building will cost $5,200. From this figure the annual fire insurance premium of $853.42 is now being paid.

The studies that led to serious consideration of demolition was brought about by the condemnation of the building by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction. Also a report of an independent engineering firm stating that it would cost approximately $300,000 to recondition the building prompted the study.

Walter Speaker Pro Tem

(Special to The Daily Record)

WASHINGTON — Rep. Francis E. Walter was tapped Monday by Speaker Sam Rayburn for the second time in two weeks to serve as speaker pro tem of the House of Represenatives.

The speaker represented the House in greeting Vice President Lyndon Johnson on his return from Berlin.

Walter was in the chair for one of the busiest sessions in recent weeks, as only eight of the 21 bills slated to be called on the consent calendar and under suspension of rules were acted on.

The Easton Democrat presided over the lengthy debates, many of them centering on legislation dealing with a wide range of changes in the federal criminal code. One of the bills was H. R. 8383 which dealt with crimes aboard aircraft in air commerce. It passed on a roll call vote, 373-5.

Immediately after the session, Walter left by airplane for St. Louis, Mo., where Tuesday morning he delivers the principal address at the national convention of the Disabled American Veterans.

Rohn said Stankiewicz was traveling north on 512, failed to stop at a stop sign and hit Mrs. Hoagland's car. He will be charged with failure to stop.

Mrs. Hoagland was treated at the office of Dr. R. H. Dreher, Wind Gap, for cuts of the scalp and right knee and was admitted to Easton Hospital for chest X-rays.

Area Counties Would Share In Subsidies

MONROE, Pike and Wayne would be among school districts in eight counties which would receive an estimated $1,466,806 under a variety of subsidies in the current proposal to expand state aid to local education facilities.

The new program would be financed through a proposed 2 per cent tax on royalties, dividends and capital gains. The taxing program originally called for income derived from rents to be taxed, but this was stricken from the measure in the House of Representatives last week.

The breakdown of proposed aid under the program did not list the estimates of what each county would pay into the state treasury as a result of the new tax.

The estimates of what each county would receive are as follows:

Lackawanna, $386,835; Monroe, $77,703; Pike, $10,002; Bradford, $178,723; Susquehanna, $103,720; Wayne, $57,266; Wyoming, $47,448 and Luzerne, $608,109.

The total amount of the program is estimated at $25,600,000. The biggest chunk of that is a $19,000,000 section for subsidies to local school districts.

Other phases of the program include $2,500,000 for school construction, which is expected to fall under the legislative pruning process; $1,000,000 for a statewide system of community colleges, also expected to feel the knife; $620,000 to raise salaries at state-owned colleges, $700,000 to reorganize the State Department of Public Instruction and to create a new State Council on Higher Education, $1,500,000 for increased aid to Pennsylvania State University and the balance to administer the tax collection program.

Woman Hurt In Route 590 Collision

MILFORD — One person was injured in a two-car accident on Route 590 in Lackawaxen Township at 2 p.m. yesterday.

State Police here identified the drivers as Edna A. Lindner, 34, and Willard Arnold, 46, both of Hawley, RD 1.

Troopers said the Lindner car skidded off the wet highway and as she attempted to gain control it crossed the highway and plowed into the Arnold car.

She was admitted to Wayne Memorial Hospital, Honesdale, with a broken pelvis and cut elbow. Arnold was not hurt. Both cars were demolished.

Sewage Plant Head Named In Bangor

BANGOR — Samuel Becker, 214 N. 12th St., was elected by Bangor council last night as superintendent of the new sewage treatment plant. No salary was designated.

Becker was the only nominee, although there were 21 other applicants for the job. Seven councilmen voted for Becker's election, and Horace Jennings was listed as not voting because he said there was not a full council present as four were absent. He disputed the hiring without setting the salary or an hours schedule.

The sewer committee was instructed to further discuss with the sewer authority and contractor provisions in the sewer contract relating to replacing street surfaces after excavation.

It was noted the contract stipulates that borough streets regardless of the previous material used, are to be replaced with blacktopping, but state controlled streets are to be replaced with the same material that had been torn up.

Donated 250 Pints Of Blood

DAVID C. Woelrle, son of Chester Woelrle, Pocono Pines, was among 2,000 Air Force recruits at Lackland AFB, Tex., who recently donated 250 gallons of blood to replenish a recently discovered "miracle medicine."

Twenty-eight days prior to donating blood, the group received a smallpox vaccination and each had a positive reaction. The blood they donated was processed into a vaccine immune globulin — a life saving medication used in rare cases when smallpox vaccination causes a critical illness.

Bernbaum River Trip Abandoned

LESTER BERNBAUM, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bernbaum, 22 Ransberry Ave., East Stroudsburg, is en route home after he and three companions abandoned their attempt to tour the length of the Mississippi River on a raft.

The group left Hudson, Minn., with the intention of riding the raft to New Orleans, but it broke en route and they traded it for a used motorboat.

The motorboat turned out to be something of a lemon and the group decided to abandon the trip. Mrs. Bernbaum said last night the four are hitchhiking back to their homes.

Bernbaum will be a student at East Stroudsburg State College this Fall.

CAP Holds Biggest Field Drills

MT. POCONO — Pennsylvania Wing, Civil Air Patrol, staged the largest field maneuvers in its 20-year history over the weekend with an estimated 1,500 cadets and senior members participating.

About 80 members of Group 20 from Scranton, Carbondale, Honesdale, Wilkes-Barre and Hazleton participated in "Operation Recovery" which had more than 100 light planes operating from 13 air fields across the state.

Major Base

Pocono Airport at Mount Pocono was the major base of the huge operation under direction of Col. Philip H. Neuweiler, Allentown, wing commander.

Maneuvers were marked by arrival of an unexpected distinguished visitor, Brig. Gen. Stephen D. McElroy, national CAP commander from Texas, at the Pocono Base.

After watching maneuvers and inspecting units in the field, General McElroy said "the display of equipment and conduct of personnel was most impressive."

Maneuver problems included air and land rescue operations, search and message techniques and parachute jumps by paramedics.

Lt. Col. John W. Mills, Scranton, Group 20 commander, was chief aide to Colonel Neuweiler at problem headquarters. He was aided by other Group 20 officers and personnel.

Useful Spending Abroad

More American and European corporations making profits abroad ought to consider the kind of diversified reinvesting that Creole Petroleum has just announced it plans to follow in Venezuela.

Creole is setting up an investment company there with an initial capital of $10,000,000. It would lend money for projects that:

1. Give jobs to Venezuelans.
2. Use locally produced raw materials.
3. Are considered necessary for the country's wise economic growth.
4. Create foreign exchange.
5. Have reasonable possibility of financial success.

In addition, Creole's investments will be governed by some negative rules designed to counter widely held suspicions of American "economic imperialism." The firm will remain a minority stockholder, investing in collaboration with Venezuelan lenders. It will invest only in plant expansion or new construction.

Many persons have come to believe that socially or economically desirable projects in developing nations are unprofitable—and, conversely, that profitable investments are socially undesirable. This does not need to be the case. Indeed the history of investment and development shows that monetary profits can result equally from "desirable" and "undesirable" enterprises.

When useful aims are built into the program alongside reasonable rules for financial soundness, as in the new Creole firm, there is every reason to expect success on both scores.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Our Critics Need Mirror

Back from a 20-day tour of Asia, Africa and Europe, Undersecretary Chester Bowles told the National Press Club:

"Let us recognize bluntly that right now most Asians, Africans and Latin Americans are profoundly skeptical of our capacity consistently to live up to our revolutionary tradition in support of self-determination and equality for all peoples."

We can no longer coast, Mr. Bowles said, on our revolutionary past but must have "our actions fit our words."

This, he declared, is necessary because "we Americans will be tested in the next few months as perhaps never before in our long history."

Mr. Bowles' points are well worth pondering. There remains a large gap between American expressions of ideals and American practices, from treatment of Negroes and other minorities to often thoughtless and haphazard administration of foreign aid.

But, granting their shortcomings, Americans may be pardoned for feeling a little irritated at all that skepticism abroad. Sometimes it seems that criticizing the U. S. is replacing soccer as the great international pastime. How about the critics?

India has yet to speak up on the Communist repressions in Berlin.

The African voice has yet to be heard on the nuclear test ban treaty which, but for Russian obstructionism, could be an accomplished fact.

The Latin Americans still are pouting because the U. S. politely suggested that they set their own houses in order before U. S. aid starts pouring in.

There is no racial or religious equality in great parts of Asia, come to think of it.

If there is unity in defense of liberty in Latin America, it doesn't always show.

It is flattering that our critics should wish us to be perfect at all times. That will take a long time to achieve. It may never come about at all.

Meanwhile, our Latin, Asian and African friends might devote at least part of their critical faculties to the situation in their own bailiwicks.

PICTURESQUE POCONOS—The Poconos are rich in farmlands as well as mountain scenery, and these workers on the Pinebrook Farm are harvesting spring oats. The oats will be used for cattle feed, and the Angus cattle on this farm should be well-fed from the size of the crop. On thePinebrook Farm they raise all the food they need for the winter except for a protein supplement. The West End of the county has the most farmlands as the terrain levels out into rolling hillsides. The wide valley between Kresgeville and Lehighton offers a view of rich, verdant farms rimmed with forested slopes.

Magazine Article Encourages Recognition Of Red China

A magazine which goes by the name of War-Peace Report has appeared with a long article entitled "United States China Policy — in the Jaws of the Vise," by Mr. Z. Mrs. Z. is Urban Whittaker of the San Francisco State College.

The object of the article is to encourage a recognition of Red China. It begins with these sentences:

"For nearly 12 years now the United States has avoided formal relations with the most populous political entity of the earth and has prevented its representation in the United Nations. Thus the serious defeat that the forces of world anti-communism suffered in 1949 in China has not yet been registered officially on the diplomatic books either in the United States or in the world organization."

If the establishment of Red China is so important, why do we have to recognize it or to use the phrase of the author, register it officially on the diplomatic books. The conclusion that Whittaker reaches is:

"In short, the General Assembly, by a large majority, appears determined to seat both Chinas, but if it is eventually forced to choose between them, it is prepared to choose 600 millions in preference to the 12 millions."

The author admits that the Two Chinas idea is opposed by both Communist China and Nationalist China. The author believes that if the United States continues to reject the Two Chinas idea, the United Nations will accept a one China, namely, Red China.

Urban Whittaker devoted himself to an attack on the Committee of One Million, which to him is "the remains of the Old China Lobby under one umbrella." When one uses the term China Lobby, he speaks of something that never existed; that is the Kuomintang government in Formosa never maintained more than the usual press service here.

However, Alfred Kohlberg, a handkerchief manufacturer and merchant, who at one time had business interests in China, spent his own money opposing Communist China. When Alfred Kohlberg died, those who had an opportunity to know, were astonished at the enormous amount spent by Kohlberg for various anti-Communist causes. And it was all his own money.

Kohlberg enjoyed calling himself "The China Lobby." It was an absurd appellation which led to false connotations. However, that is what the China Lobby was for many years — a one man effort by an American citizen who hated Communism. The Committee of One Million is a public body which is managed by Marvin Liebman who is also active in other anti-Communist causes.

The Committee of One Million is bi-partisan, and includes many important persons. Urban Whittaker says:

"Nothing on the American political scene today is quite so absurd or quite so fraught with dangerous international consequences as the alliance of Hubert Humphrey with Barry Goldwater, of Paul Douglas with Everett Dirksen and of Clifford Case with Walter Judd on the Committee of One Million."

This sounds a bit hysterical. Most Americans are opposed to Red China and it is therefore not surprising to see both Republicans and Democrats on this committee.

Urban Whittaker has prepared a research memorandum on "Chinese Representation in the United Nations" which is marked "Confidential (for limited circulation only)." According to this memorandum, he interviewed the delegates of 91 member states. He finds that there are five possible solutions to the China problem. These he states as follows:

"Solution 1. One, non-communist China, de facto and de jure. This is the pre-1949 situation. It would require the victorious return of the Nationalists to the Mainland.

"Solution 2. Two Chinas, de facto, with the non-communist government represented de jure at the United Nations. This is the status quo solution, the situation as it has actually existed since 1949.

"Solution 3. Two Chinas, one communist and one non-communist, de facto and de jure. This is what is usually meant by the term 'two Chinas,' both of them in the United Nations.

"Solution 4. Two Chinas de facto, with the communist government represented de jure at the United Nations. This is the reverse of Solution 2, the present situation.

"Solution 5. One, communist China, de facto and de jure. This is the reverse of the original, pre-1949 situation."

No matter how one reads this material, he reaches the conclusion that Urban Whittaker favors the Two Chinas as most likely to be accepted in the United Nations.

Castro's Currency Switch Is Costly

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Dictator Castro's sudden sweeping currency switch is costing the Cuban people the equivalent of at least one-half billion dollars.

It is now crystal clear this money juggle was a capital levy on Cubans, primarily for the purpose of wiping out hundreds of millions of paper pesos the Red-tainted regime had unloaded on them since the first of this year.

The U.S. is not affected by this Communist-type monetary Expropriation. It hits only Cubans, both at home and abroad.

Heaviest losers among the former are those with deposits in the nationalized banks, which are directly controlled by "Che" Guevara, the Argentine-born, hard-core Communist who is Castro's "economic czar." These unfortunate Cubans, chiefly of the middle class, are getting only a fraction of their bank holdings in the new currency — printed in satellite Czechoslovakia.

Refugee Cubans with savings in the old pesos are faring even worse. They are barred from getting anything.

In one of Castro's hours-long harangues, he boasted that these filched "foreign" peso holdings amounted to 400 million. U.S. authorities consider that claim exaggerated.

They estimate these holdings as not exceeding 250 million pesos.

But even that is a huge grab for Castro's inflation-riddled economy.

When the bombastic Cuban dictator came into power in January 1959, there were around 1.250 billion pesos in circulation — with the peso worth approximately $1.

By January of this year, the number of pesos in circulation had risen to some 1.5 billion. While a considerable increase and indicative of growing inflation, this was not deemed unduly disturbing.

The value of the peso had dropped, but only to around 75 cents.

The Castro regime was still living on the rich plants, properties and other interests it had seized from U.S. and other foreign owners. These confiscations of more than $1 billion had kept a check-rein on inflation.

Came The Deluge — But after January, these lush prizes were largely exhausted.

Thereupon, Guevara, by then firmly in the saddle as economic ruler, resorted to the standard Communist stratagem in such dilemmas — printing presses. They began grinding out pesos around the clock.

Early this month, just before the abrupt currency switch, the number of pesos in circulation had soared to upwards of 2 billion — a jump of 500 million in six months.

And the value of the peso had sunk to around 14 cents.

Officially, Castro and Guevara are maintaining the fiction that their new peso is worth $1. But it has no convertibility anywhere, including the Iron Curtain. Neither Russia, Red China nor the satellites are accepting these pesos. They consider them worthless, in effect.

All their trade deals with Cuba are strictly on a barter basis—and on the Red's terms. They are fixing the prices and not Castro.

However, the beefy dictator has scored several immediate gains:

He has wiped out the 250 million or more pesos held by Cuban refugees; an appreciable monetary confiscation at the expense of these anti-Castro Cubans. Similarly, he has struck a cruel blow at thousands of middle-class people in Cuba who also are hostile but still living there. A large part of their savings have been swallowed up.

And Castro and Guevara have temporarily, at least, slowed down the run-away inflation that threatened to engulf them.

How long this currency finagling will work is conjectural. It can't last very long; a matter of months at the most.

Then Castro and Guevara will have to resort to new grabs — another comouflaged capital levy, a cut and freeze of wages, confiscation of all private property, step by step the whole gamut of communization of Cuban economy and life.

That looms ahead as surely as tomorrow so long as Castro and his Red henchmen remain in control.

The Pay-Off — Lard and oil are now rationed in Cuba at the rate of one pound a person per month. To ensure comliance with this drastic edict, the so-called Committees for the Defense of the Revolution and the Communist-controlled Federation of Cuban Women are making a census of persons in each house . . . Jewelry and other valuables, worth many millions of dollars, seized by the Castro regime from "enemies of the people," have disappeared from public displays. Reliable reports indicate they have been bartered for Iron Curtain supplies . . . During Castro's warring against Batista, he loudly denounced proposals to mechanize the cutting of sugar cane. Castro excoriated this as "an imperialistic device to cut wages and eliminate workers." Now Castro is boasting that one of his followers has perfected such a machine and it will be extensively used to harvest the next sugar crop . . . A shipment of 120,000 cases of condensed milk, canned fruits and vegetables has arrived on a Russian freighter. This food is being sent to provincial areas where shortages have aroused increasing hostility toward Castro.

The Pennsylvania Story

State Senators Shun $1.5 Million

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Anyone interested in throwing away $1,500,000

Probably not — or at least there are very few who would be interested in such fiscal gymnastics where their own personal money is involved!

In any event, the gents in the Senate have, in effect, done just this — thrown away roughly $1,500,000, not in their own personal pesos, but in potential income for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

In actuality it wasn't just "thrown away" — that is, the $1,500,000 isn't money they spent throwing it down the drain on such useless items as a junket to Outer Mongolia; nothing quite like that.

Rather, it is hard-pressed money the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania could have had in its coffers had the "noble fifty" in the upper chamber seen fit to move — a little earlier and quite a bit more expeditiously.

Here's what we mean:

Last week the Senate decided — somewhat suddenly — to go along with a Lawrence Administration request to eliminate the two per cent sales tax commissions paid to retailers for collecting the tax. The legislation had been languishing on the vine in the Senate since February.

Democratic Lawrence Administration leaders in the upper chamber held off on bringing out the measure for a showdown, knowing they could not garner enough anti-administration Republican votes to pass the legislation — and with a 25-25 split in membership (26 votes required to pass legislation) the absolute reliance on GOP support was obvious.

The sales tax commission repealer was one of the parts of the administration's revenue program designed to balance out its near-billion-dollar general fund budget. Virtually all other revenue-raising projections of the administration long ago cleared legislative hurdles — but not this item.

The new fiscal year for Pennsylvania started June 1.

One of the general fund fiscal items remaining "up in the air" at that time was the sales tax commission repealer.

In the overall fiscal year picture this piece of legislation was projected as producing $8,000,000. The June 1 starting date of the fiscal year came and went.

At the present time, the Keystone State is just about three months into the new fiscal year — and only last week did the commission repealer move through the Senate.

It didn't move in the legislative form as originally submitted but rather cleared as an amendment to the sales tax-exemption-for-processors legislation. The House this week is expected to concur in the amendment.

But — meanwhile, the months of June, July and most of August have passed, and the revenue from the sales tax commission repealer has not been forthcoming, notwithstanding the fact that the administration set up a "tight" budget skinned down to going within the framework of a completed revenue program.

Budget Secretary David R. Baldwin had estimated income to the state at around $500,000 a month from the elimination of sales tax commission payments to retailers.

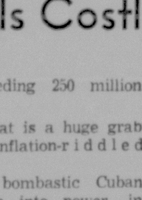
With three months of the new fiscal year now gone, to all practical intents and purposes, the "loss" now runs to about the $1,500,000 figure — or, it is estimated in the remainder of the fiscal year, it will produce about $6,500,000 instead of the $8,000,000 originally scheduled.

The point is: three months beyond the deadline, anti-administration senators finally decided to lend their support. If it could be done now — it could just as well have been done on time three months ago without losing 1,500,000 bucks worth of apparently critically needed state services!

Now it's a question of cutting the fiscal cloth to fit.

Inside You And Yours

Tail Bone Injury Can Cause Troubles



By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

You're neither dog nor cow, but your guppy-sized tail bone can cause a whale of a problem!

You may slip and hit your tail bone — or coccyx — against the edge of a step or curbstone. Dropping kerplunk onto a hard chair whacks the coccyx with a wooden mallet. A few hours of slouching or sitting on a wooden bench can trigger tail bone trouble.

Your coccyx feels bone-breaking pain. Twinges may shoot across the buttocks and down the leg. Toileting often forces the sad tail bone out of place and brings on new agonies.

Test And X-Rays

Your doctor will test the coccyx to see whether it's tender, rough, extra-loose or bent at an odd angle. X-ray pictures may not pick out the few fractured tail bones, but they do show where the coccyx is out of joint.

After the tail bone's back in place, the doctor will strap your lower back and upper buttocks. Or he'll suggest a corset or belt to keep the coccyx from moving.

He may tape a felt doughnut around the coccyx to protect it and prescribe special detergent capsules to soften intestinal contents and ease toileting.

Hot baths and soothing massage help relieve the pain. Stay away from hard chairs and extra-soft cushions that spread the buttocks and put pressure on the coccyx.

How To Sit

With an inflatable pillow, your coccyx can be floating on air. Or maybe you'd prefer an air-filled doughnut that takes your weight off the unhappy tail bone. Easy chairs become comfortable if you pull the cushion forward and sit with the coccyx in back of it.

Don't expect a lightning cure. Doctors wait a year before sacrificing aching tail bones to surgery.

Eventually the pain fades — leaving you happier than a tail-wagging puppy!

About Town

Binds of the time: Jack, who was divorced, was driving the bookkeeper crazy by insisting that she deduct from his monthly pay-check the alimony payments he had to send his ex-wife.

"I'm afraid if you don't do it, I'll forget to get the check off to her on time," he explained.

"What difference can one day or two make?" the bookkeeper asked.

"If I get behind in my payments," Jack shivered, "she might decide to repossess me."

Pearly-gate crasher: The executive vice president of a large corporation died suddenly and the funeral was attended by all the top brass of the organization. The formalities were barely over when the second-in-command VP sidled up to the president, whispering. "What a shocking loss. Do you think I'm ready to take his place?"

The president glanced at him poolly. "It's all right with me," he said. "Clear it with the undertaker."

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Must be frustrating for men of the "I am master of my fate" school to realize how dependent their mood may be on the slight changes in barometric reading. Women more generally don't nurse such delusions in the first place.

A rainy Monday with a whole weekend company wash piled up and not even enough sun to show up the dust—and they know they're licked. Not even counting what it does to their hair and having the children penned up indoors.

But weather is our great common denominator, and with or without any inconvenience, the starch went out of almost everybody. There are a few rare people who don't respond to weather but they are the ones who have such vital activities surrounding them that they don't even know they're depressed.

The farmers needed the rain, no doubt; the dust needed dampening down around the construction projects; and it was a good day, perhaps, to get reacquainted with the children who have somehow become as elusive as the rabbits and ground hogs that gambol in plain sight on the lawn but disappear as soon as you try to get close to them.

It was a good day to do a lot of things. If people's personalities didn't seem to turn as dreary as the weather. A storm with plenty of wind and thunder and lightening may make them rather fey, but a steady drizzle and low clouds just seems to make them soggy.

Not even the idea of the League of Women Voters getting all set for their uphill fight to keep the voters informed, alert and interested in various important matters seemed to set off a spark; proposed picnics invoked only a premonitory shiver, and the baseball and football mothers willing to take on team morale as well as dislocated meal schedules invoked only wonder.

Seems like a lot to blame on the weather, but the only other thing I can blame it on is me, and that would never do.

Models Starve For Galanos, Go From Thin To Thinner

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When five tall, already too-thin high fashion models stock up on rye crackers, carrot sticks and diet pills, their families automatically know they have received an ultimatum from James Galanos.

"Stop eating," comes the succinct demand from the California designer a few weeks before he is ready to move to the East to introduce another elegant collection.

And they do. In return for the thrill and prestige of being in a Galanos show, the bony mannequins pare off at least a total of 40 pounds.

"I'm his biggest problem," admits Ellen Staff, blonde, 5 feet 8, and usually 118 pounds. But she's 108 for Galanos. She loses two pounds a day by eating toast for breakfast and fruit for lunch. In the evening she has a full but starchless meal with her husband, "So that Carl won't realize I'm dieting again."

Big Girl, Little Girl

Hunger pangs couldn't possibly compare to the humiliation of having their idol, Jimmy, suggest during a fitting that their hips are too heavy for the hang of his gowns.

Actually Galanos' personal model Pat Jones is the reason they starve. During most of his 10 years in California, the spare designer of Greek descent has built his costumes around her narrow-shouldered, narrow-hipped, 5 foot 7 frame. Galanos never works from sketches, and seldom permits his collection to be photographed on anyone but Pat.

The admiration is mutual. Pat believes she is the most fortunate woman in the world to be the figure inspiration for the great Galanos and she too is willing to sacrifice food for the honor.

To model the Fashion Critics Award show for Jimmy a year and a half ago, she kept her tummy flat—although seven and a half months pregnant.

"She had a beautiful, healthy baby girl though," relates amazed Cathy Ragan, 5 feet 9, the tallest model. Cathy also diets to match Pat Jones' measurements, budgets to buy a Galanos dress, and utterly worships its designer. "It's such a challenge. He demands the best of everyone."

Calm, Cool, Collected

Unlike the backstage bedlam of Paris, Galanos' dressing rooms are calm, organized and as noiseless as a funeral parlor. Every four minutes the models switch costumes, averaging 22 each during a 90-minute show.

Laid out with each dress or coat is the right hat, jewelry and pair of gloves, all designed by Galanos. Each girl has her own wardrobe mistress who zips and snaps. Then Michel Kazan pats back into place any stray strands on his freshly designed coiffure.

Last stop before she enters a plush hotel ballroom to parade before Galanos' carefully selected guests is Galanos himself. His alert eye catches a bow awry, or a hat too jaunty.

Early Start

Pursuit of perfection in womanly dress began for Galanos at 18 when he left New Jersey to "push fabrics around and pick up pins in Hattie Carnegie's salon."

There was design school and a three-year scholarship with Robert Piquet in Paris before Galanos set up shop in California for the film people. His first collection in 1951 and every one since has received national acclaim.

"Making a woman feel as young and feminine as possible despite trends in Paris or here" is his only fashion philosophy.

In Galanos' search for young, feminine perfection, he designs 180 costumes, shows only 130 and is said to spend as much as a quarter of a million dollars in doing it.

He is the absolute boss of the 100-member production staff, directs his own shows, sells to buyers and controls all publicity.

Mother, Too

Sometimes his mercurial disposition gets the best of him. He throws up his hands in protest, "I'm only human. I can't do everything around here."

But he does.

For years Galanos has dressed his three pretty sisters and mother now living in Philadelphia. However, his associates say that once Galanos threatened to stop making gowns for his mother, unless she took off weight.

Like the other worshipful women, she did.

Let Your Child Choose His Own Field Of Work

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

"OUR BOY wants to go into one kind of work and we want him to go into something else," writes a reader from Oklahoma. "Can you give us some advice on what you think about this?"

In place of saying what I think, I'm first going to tell a story that gives its own advice, a story of another boy who wanted to go into one kind of work and whose parents wanted him to go into something else

Loved Mechanics

Young Joe Blake—as we'll call him — loved tinkering with mechanical things and building toy bridges and skyscrapers all through childhood. Through adolescence he cherished his own private dream of becoming a first-rate engineer.

But whenever Joe talked about engineering, Joe's father, a lawyer in love with law, talked more loudly about the legal profession and how Joe owed it to him and the family to join him in his law firm.

Gave In To Father

In the end, Joe gave up trying to win out over his father, enrolled in his father's choice of law schools and later joined the family firm. But when his office day was done, he turned to mechanical things and built models in his cellar.

Even more important than the time spent building things in his cellar, though, was the time Joe spent trying to help his own son prepare for the work of his choice.

Knows Better

"Whenever people tell me how lucky my boy is to have a desk in an established law firm waiting for him," Joe used to say, "I smile to myself and know with all my heart that he's going to be a museum curator."

How wonderful it would be if all of us who are parents could have a touch of Joe in our hearts and know that our one job—and only job—when it comes to helping our children select careers is to subtly guide them and give them a hand when they need it.

As a parent, you can best help guide your children to their future work at any age by allowing them to develop according to their own needs and aspirations. From time to time drop subtle hints (but stop right there) about careers that encompass the interests, abilities and activities they've shown all through childhood.

He Loved Tinkering With Mechanical Things

When they're old enough, encourage them to try after-school and weekend jobs. And when they start taking these jobs, don't act as though you disapprove if they have to float from one thing to another for a while before they find a niche.

Let Child Choose

Finally, above all else in the world, let your children be what they want to be. Let each one choose the work of his choice, not the work that you'd plan for him.

(If you have your own thoughts on this subject to share with readers, I'll be glad to hear them. And if you would like the pamphlet "Vocational Guidance For Parents," send me a self-addressed stamped envelope and I will send it to you.)

X Marks The Spot For Woman Justice, But Nosy Newshound Fixes Date

By Harry W. Ball

Harrisburg (AP) — Demure little Marsha Swiss came home from school in Pittsburgh one day a dozen years ago and said, "Mother, my teacher wants to know how old you are and what the 'X' stands for in your name."

"You tell your teacher," instructed then City Solicitor Anne X. Alpern, whose name was a household word in Pittsburgh, "that I'm 18 years old and the 'X' stands for 'Xhaustion.'"

The incisive rejoinder, quick wit, and sensitivity to personal questions are characteristics of the vibrant woman about to become the first of her sex to sit on Pennsylvania's centuries-old Supreme Court.

Still demure and still very much the apple of her doting mother's eye, Marsha Ellen Swiss, an only child, has matured into a 21-year-old senior at Swarthmore College. She's studying for a legal career in the footsteps of her illustrious mother. Both parents were lawyers. Marsha's father Irwin A. Swiss, was killed in a traffic accident.

In those eventful years Miss Alpern was successful lawyer, county judge, State Attorney General. Then she was appointed to fill a vacancy on the state supreme court. Her name goes on the ballot this fall as the Democratic nominee for a full 21-year term.

Blunt and Honest

Too many career women, start off like it was an obstacle course, Miss Alpern says. They either feel inferior to men in a man's world or they may be disposed to trade on their femininity.

"There's NO sex in brains or industry," Miss Alpern sums up with characteristic bluntness. "You're either competent or you're not."

No other state has ever had a women attorney general yet in a man's job she avoids mannish affectations or "low-heeled shoes that would make me look like a suffragette or something."

The high-ceilinged, paneled office she occupies in Pennsylvania's rumbling old Capitol is precisely the same as it was when Miss Alpern's male predecessor occupied it. The sole vestige of femininity on the premises is a plain red purse lying atop the cluttered desk. After her appointment to the bench, a secretary block-lettered on ruled tablet paper "ANNE X-ALTED ALPERN" and pasted it to the inner wall of the door. The unpretentious indentification remains.

Courtroom antagonists who have under-estimated this dark-haired, soft looking woman, have been withered by her brittle tongue.

Voice of Authority

Although of medium height, Miss Alpern moves as an actress and speaks with husky, authoritative voice. Besides making news, Miss Alpern is always accessible to reporters. Whatever time of day or night the caller will usually find her working.

As Attorney General the fighting lady waged war on several fronts simultaneously—for cheaper milk, cleaner food, and honest elections. She was also trying to pry open the closed doors of a foundation-sponsored art gallery in Philadelphia.

Secret's Out

A nosy newsman poking into the Capitol archives learned that Miss Alpern was born on Christmas Day in 1903 in Washington County, Pennsylvania.

"It's not a matter of vanity," she lamented when her well kept secret was exposed. "Age is something relative, and if a woman wants to drop off a year or two of it as she goes along, it's none of anybody's business."

Friends can only speculate about that "X" in her name. Does it have to do with her Christmas birth date? Or as Harry Truman adopted the meaningless "S," is the "X" just for the heck of it?

Anthracite Assoc. Denies Gangland Affiliation

HARRISBURG (AP) — Spokesmen for the Anthracite Raceway Association Monday rejected the possibility that any of the organization's stockholders or directors are tainted byy underworld connections.

Theodore Lupitka, Hazleton, counsel for the association, said gangland influences are "not in any way connected with this race track," said Lupitka. "He is deceased."

Lupitka also contended his organization is "not interested in picking apart why Pocono should not have a track."

Victor Diehm, Scranton, anthracite director and owner of a number of radio stations and other interests, told the commission his organization's proposed track would be "very, very close" to the Penn-Can Highway, due to be completed by 1963.

He estimated the site would be about a quarter-mile from the intersection of interstate Routes 80 and 81, the Keystone Shortway and Penn-Can Highway, respectively. The project would consist of 600 acres and cost about $4.5 million.

Duffy declined to pin down the sources of his information put in the anonymous letters.

"There is nothing that can be stated for a certainty," he declared.

He also testified that he had gotten the information he put in the letters "from hearsay and rumor," addi::

"It's up to the commission to do a complete investigation. The weight and relevancy of the information must be decided by the commission."

Pocono's proposed site would be a 340-acre tract of land near the Pennsylvania Turnpike's Northeast Extension. Duffy told the commission that promoters of the organization are ready to put up $3 million for a track and obtain another $4 million by subscription.

Lionel Lee, New York racing architect, termed the proposed Pocono location "an excellent site."

He also told the commission that from the start of plans until opening of a track would take no more than 18 months.

Sets Record

Thousands Sign For Nat'l Amateur Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Defending champion Deane Beman of Arlington, Va., heads a record entry list of 2,019 aspirants to the 1961 National Amateur Golf Championship.

The list, announced Monday by the U.S. Golf Association, tops by 282 the previous mark of 1,737 set last year.

Twenty-eight entrants are exempt from qualifying. The others will compete for a total of 172 places in the 36-hole tests to be held at 37 sectional sites Aug. 28, 29 and 31. The tournament proper will be held at Pebble Beach, Calif., Sept. 11-16.

The New York metropolitan section has the largest number of entrants, 156 competing for 13 berths. Los Angeles has 144 bidding for 12 places, San Francisco 142 for 12, and Portland, Ore., 135 for 12.

The exemptions, in addition to Beman, who defeated Bob Gardner of Spring Lake, N.J., 6 and 4 in last year's final at the St.Louis Country club, include former national champions, the current and former Britiss amateur champions, semifinalists in last year's tournament, the 1960 Canadian and Mexican amateur champions, the 1961 public links champion, the 1961 junior champion, and members of the 1961 American and British Walker Cup teams.

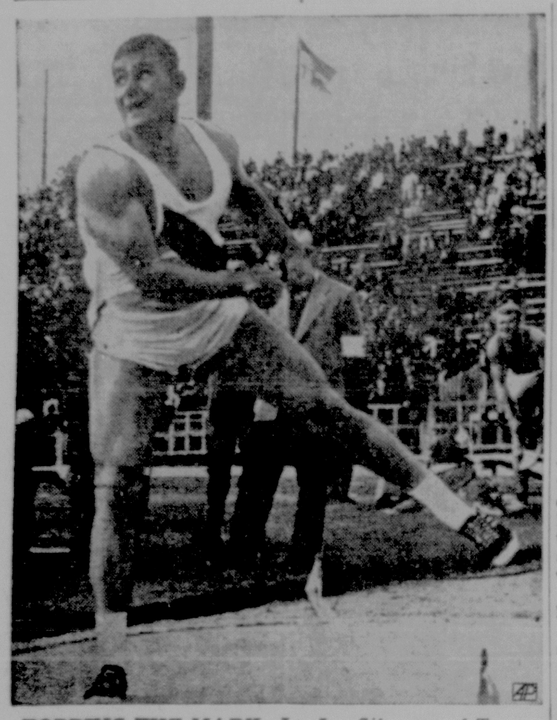
Several of the exempt players qualify under more than one category, accounting for the fact only 28 get in on a pass.

The former national amateur champions entered are Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, 1959; Charles R. Coe, Oklahoma City, Okla., 1949 and 1958; Harvie Ward Jr., San Francisco, 1955 and 1956; Jack Westland, Everett, Wash., 1952; Richard Chapman, Osterville, Mass., 1940, and Charles (Chick) Evans Jr., Chicago, 1916 and 1920.

Should Beman repeat as champion he will be the first to do it since Ward won in 1955 and 1956.

The tournament is conducted at 18-hole match play until the semifinals. The semifinals and final will be at 36 holes.

TROPHY WINNERS — The two men in the back row, Dr. Gail Fegley (r.), vice president of the Lions Club, and Robert Haigh, chairman of the Boys and Girls Activities Committee for the Lions, presented awards to these boys at the Stroudsburg Playground last week. The boys and awards are (l. to r., front to back), William Grimm, swimming; J. David Pierson, Playground Award; Halsey Melvin, Playground Award; John Shanley, Playground Award; Richard Mann, most progress beginning swimmer; Michael Wells, most progress for an advanced beginning swimmer.



TOPPING THE MARK—Lt. Jay Silvester of Tremonton, Utah, follows through after tossing discus at international military track and field championship in Brussels, Belgium. Silvester tossed the discus 199 feet, 2 and one-half inches, beating both the listed world mark of 196 feet, 6 and one-half inches and his own pending mark of 198 feet, 7 inches made at Frankfurt, Germany.

LA (AL) Not (NL) OK HRs

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The indignant prophets who said home run records would be shamefully abused in Los Angeles might have been right. Only they spoke three years too soon and they were talking about the wrong park.

Back in 1958, when the Dodgers settled in the Coliseum, the left-field screen became the most vilified barrier since the Iron Curtain. One magazine even demanded that baseball disregard the home run records which were certain to be set at the Coliseum—and which, incidentally, never were.

But what the National League has failed to achieve at the Coliseum the American League may shortly accomplish about a mile away in a Lilliputian arena known as Wrigley Field.

The Los Angeles Angels will play only one season at Wrigley Field. But, by the time they leave, the present major league record for most home runs at one park in a single year may look about as impressive as the five-minute mile.

The old home run record was set at Cincinnati in 1957, when the Reds and their guests hit 219 home runs at Crosley Field.

Already this year there have been 177 homers at Wrigley Field, and the Angels still have 25 games to play at home. If baseballs continue leaving the premises at the present rate, the home run total at season's end will be 256.

The present American League record is 200, set at Detroit in 1959. Detroit also was high last season with 163—14 fewer than have been hit at Wrigley Field in little more than two-thirds of a season.

The most ever hit at the Coliseum was 193, in 1958. (The Dodgers and their opponents hit 14 more than that at Brooklyn in 1950.)

While the foul poles at Wrigley Field are 340 and 339 feet from home plate, the park is painfully small in the power alleys. It's only 345 to left-center, the same distance to right-center.

Serafin, Bickel Tie PPGA Play

HOST pro Ted Bickel and red hot John Serafin of Fox Hill Country Club, tied for low pro honors in Monday's Pocono Professional Golf Association Tournament at Harker's Hollow with one-over-par 73's.

It was the second win of the year for Bickel, and the fourth victory for Serafin, who has won every PPGA tournament that he has played in but one.

Third place went to Bob Schoener, Jr. of Green Pond, Bethlehem, who had 74. It was Schoener's first appearance in PPGA play, and it was a good one.

The stocky chop-swinger and amateur Manny Palos captured first place in the pro-am division with 65. Schoener and amateur John Hutnick, and Serafin and amateur Leo Feldman, tied for second in the pro-am division with 68's.

There was also a tie for fourth place between Serafin and amateur Pooch Allen, and Bickel and amateur J. Finn.

By tying for first place, Bickel picked up 16 points and moved that many points ahead of second place Sam Kinder in the point standings. Kinder did not play yesterday.

Serafin also gained 16 points, but the most important reward for Serafin was his score, which keeps him on top of the stroke average race with an unofficial mark of 72 strokes per tournament.

Heavy rains drenched the Phillipsburg, N. J. course in the morning, but stopped shortly before noon, and a misty drizzle, that continued off and on throughout the day, took over.

Rees Downs Barber With Wonder Shot

WENTWORTH, England (AP)—Dai Rees, captain of Britain's Ryder Cup golf team, pulled off a wonder shot from beneath the undergrowth Monday and defeated the United States captain, Jerry Barber, by one stroke in a challenge match.

The little Welshman had to shoot from beside the base of a big tree. He somehow worked his way through a maze of branches and rocketed the ball straight onto the 18th green.

He then rammed home a 7-foot putt for a 74 and won the first prize of $2,800. Barber, who missed a 15-foot putt that would have halved the match, had 75. He collected $2,100.

Rees and Barber, from Los Angeles, lead their teams in the cup matches at Lytham St. Annes on Oct. 13 an 14.

Ski Champion Protests Ban

BERLIN (AP) — Olympic ski jump champion Helmut Recknagel of East Germany Sunday protested that West Germany is misusing sports for political purposes in breaking off athletic contacts with East Germany, according to the Communist East German news agency.

In reaction to the Communist border closing in Berlin, the top West German sports organizations last Thursday banned East Germans from competing in sports events in West Germany. They also announced that no West Germans would compete in international events in East Germany.

The ban was to remain in effect so long as normal traffic remains impossible within Berlin and the two halves of Germany.

Recknagel was quoted by the East German news agency ADN as saying this shows "who it is who misuse sports for political purposes."

Blakelock Takes Istanbul Crown

ISTANBUL (AP) — Britain's Robin Blakelock defeated Doris Schuster of Austria 5-7, 3-6, 6-1, and won the women's singles title in the Istanbul International Tennis Tournament Sunday.

Bob Hewitt, Australia, won the men's singles title by defeating a fellow countryman, Ken Fletcher, 6-3, 6-3, 9-7.

Sees Best Penn State Year Ever

PENN State's 1961 home football schedule ranks as the most attractive in the school's history, according to press sources there.

The Nittany Lions will open the campaign Sept. 23 by entertaining Navy, co-holder with Yale of the 1960 Lambert Trophy. The game matches two of last year's major bowl teams. Penn State trounced Oregon in the Liberty Bowl while Navy bowed to Missouri in the Orange Bowl.

Beginning Oct. 14, Penn State will play host to attractive opponents on three consecutive weekends. Syracuse will follow the Cadets into Beaver Stadium for an Oct. 21 battle, and on Oct. 28, the Lions will meet California in one of the East's bigger intersectional clashes. That game will mark Penn State's homecoming.

Coach Rip Engle's squad will close its home card on Nov. 18 with a Band Day assignment against Holy Cross.

Road games will find the Lions playing at Miami, Boston University, Maryland, West Virginia, and Pittsburgh.

Johansson Sees About Liston

ROME (AP) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion Ingemar Johansson conferred Monday with William D. Fugazy, a New York promoter, about the possibility of meeting U.S. heavyweight Sonny Liston. Afterward both declined to say how the talks were going.

On his arrival at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, Johansson, however, confirmed he came to discuss the terms of a fight with Liston at Philadelphia. But the Swede would say no more.

Fugazy on his departure from New York Sunday said he plans the bout for Montreal or Toronto in late November or early December.

100-Mile Sprint Events Set For Langhorne Sunday

LANGHORNE, Pa.—Ralph Liguori, holder of the American and world mark for the 50-mile event in the sprint division, will be among the field of eighteen going postward in the 100-mile double feature championship scheduled for the Langhorne Speedway, Sunday.

Liguori will be driving the Midwest Manufacturing Special in the USAC sanction title event.

A. J. Foyt, 1961 Indianapolis winner and defending champion in this event at Langhorne, is in hopes of piloting his Bowes Seal Fast Special to a repeat triumph in the title race. Foyt is presently in a nip-and-tuck battle with Parnelli Jones in the race for 1961 laurels in the USAC sprint division.

Since both are entered in the Sunday championship event, at Langhorne, it appears as if the race could be the deciding factor in the 1961 National championship. It is, by far, the most important event scheduled for the division.

Qualifying trials will be staged at the 'Horne on Sunday preceding the running of the 100-mile double feature championship.

Hails Futurity At W. Va. Park

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.—William P. C. Perry, chairman of the West Virginia Racing Commission, today hailed the Tri-State Futurity to be run at Shenandoah Downs for the first time next year as "a major step forward in West Virginia Racing."

The race, carrying $7500 added purse money and the only stake scheduled in West Virginia for 1962, was announced by Shenandoah General Manager Bob Leavitt over the weekend. It will be for two-year-olds foaled in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Dragsters Tonight At Nazareth

ONE OF America's fastest dragsters — Chris Karamensines of Chicago, better known as "the Flying Greek"—will make his first 1961 appearance on Tuesday night, 7:30 o'clock at the drag races in the Nazareth Fairgrounds.

Karamensines, who has been clocked at 204 miles an hour on straightaways, will be using a parachute to halt his racer after it zips down the one-quarter mile lane at the fairgrounds.

Last week Don Garlits, Tampa, Fla., "the Swamp Rat," set an all time record at Nazareth of 84 plus miles per hour. Karamensines will attempt to break this record on Tuesday night.

More than 200 drag entries are expected for the program which will include every type vehicle—including both foreign and domestic cars, compacts, sports cars, motorcycles, go-karts and other vehicles.

The drag strip will open at 6 p.m., with the first events scheduled shortly before 8 p.m.

Your Horoscope
By FRANCIS DRAKE

TUESDAY, AUGUST 22

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Start with the will to win and even if returns are not what you considered would be right, you WILL WIN in more than one way, character-wise, in stature, etc. Think!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—For whatever help you receive, offer both thanks and ready gratitude (as betokens your true self). Others will be eager to assist again. Thus cement business, friendship associations.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—A few snags here or there? Do not fret, nor suppose that you can not overcome future hazards. Each time you succeed in anything, you are stronger for the next time. Tact!

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Moon's aspect urges your best foot forward in all departments, and without misgivings or worries about whether "others don't believe" this or that. A smile and mood will for success.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Will be more than one way to do a job or plan a project. Study, investigate for most worthy means and goals. And follow through! Further education always pays.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Gains must be counted as others see them, not alone as we use them. And what we wish is not always right solution, but if we work, think, pray sincerely, we reach true contentment.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Here is a special signal to pull in reins to observe, note where you HAVE BEEN as well as where headed. Weed out useless trys, get down to rock-bottom business.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Compromise with others' wishes where it will help a situation to improve but will NOT interfere with your principles or due procedures. Sharing problems and solutions gains assistance. Don't strain.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Suggest you stop long enough really to review whether your system and knack for getting things done are the surest, wisest. Keep emotions out of decisions; study tactics.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)—If you know exactly what you should begin at early hour, and promptly start without misgivings and fears, you can gain ground quickly and effectively now. Be steady.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)—A day, says your well aspected planet Uranus, for enhancing projects, adding new details, extra finishing touches to embellish anything worth the working on. Don't sell yourself short.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—Combine the artistic with the practical for some outstanding results here. Reduce red tape and chatter to a minimum. Oratory fine, if it says the carefully right thing. Have facts.

YOU BORN TODAY are among the very versatile of the Zodiac, and by same tokken must hold yourself to consistent pace and AT A DEFINITE GOAL, else you may tend to shift, or change over to another line or trend and not give your talents an opportunity to show their true powers in a given field. You can be a most able assistant, (tops as secretary), but may tend to direct, even highest authority, often. Helping others decide is commendable IF they wish it. Your ideas are sound, far-reaching, but, remember, co-operation for good of all not just one side. Wholesome companions, bright conversation please you most. Don't fret over health, nor overindulge anything you enjoy. Birthdate of: Claude Debussy, Fr. composer; Charles A. Halleck, Congressman.

Dear Abby

You're Oversensitive

Dear Abby: My older brother recently passed away. It was God's blessing because he had been sick in the hospital for over a year, and there was no hope for him. While he was in the hospital I went to see him often, and brought him little things to cheer him up. The week after his funeral I got a note in the mail from my brother's wife THANKING me for being so kind to her husband, Abby. I am deeply hurt. This man was my own flesh and blood brother, and I don't think I need to be THANKED for being good to him during his illness. I want to speak to his wife about it, but my children tell me to forget it. I am not going to forget it. But first I want you to tell me what to say to her.

HEART-BROKEN SISTER

Dear Sister: I agree with your children. Your brother's wife did not want to slight you; therefore, when she thanked everyone else for their kindness to her husband, she included you. Let the matter drop. Your sister-in-law has enough to worry about.

Dear Abby: My husband drinks. When he really gets a snootful, he goes out on the porch, flaps his elbows and crows like a rooster. What is the meaning of this?

ROOSTER'S WIFE

Dear Wife: Maybe he's trying to tell you it's time you woke up. He's a hush.

Dear Abby: I feel terrible. My best friend dropped me because my sister had her baby three months early. My friend told me to my face that she couldn't go around with me any more because it might hurt her reputation.

Abby, I never did anything wrong, and I don't think it is fair that I should suffer for something my sister did. What should I do? I am 13.

NEEDS A FRIEND

Dear Needs: Your "friend" doesn't know the meaning of true friendship, so you haven't lost much. Just continue to be a good girl, and you will win the friendship of someone who accepts you for what YOU are, and realizes that you are not your sister's keeper.

300 Youths In Pocono Fish Derby

BARRETT—The Pocono Fishing Derby held over the weekend at Hay's Pond, Canadensis, drew 300 children, ranging from six to 14 years old.

During the day more than 200 blue gills and 80 trout were taken from the pond by children using hand lines.

William Krummel was in charge of a group of firemen who were standing by with a truck from the Barrett Fire Co.

The children and their parents were assisted by Herbert Larsen, Harold Kreck and William Kintzel. The men acted as hook baiters for the children.

A vote of thanks was given by the community to Warren Lawrence Hay for his aid in making the derby a success.

The first derby was under the sponsorship of Barrett Lions, Rotary and Pocono Vacationland Association.

Every child who caught a fish received an award of fishing tackle. In addition they received a certificate stating they were "true followers of Isaac Walton."

"The fish cooperated all day by biting at everything thrown in the water," William Kintzel said.

Peter Bree, son of Joseph Bree, Canadensis, carried away a string of 13 fish.

The Barrett Township Little League Mothers Auxiliary operated a hot food stand.

Marine Band Will Appear In Eastburg On Sept. 27

PEOPLE in the immediate and surrounding areas will have a chance to hear and see the colorful U. S. Marine Band during its one appearance in the Stroudsburgs this year.

The President of the U. S. has approved a 1961 concert tour of 10 New England and Mid-Atlantic states for this foremost military symphonic band.

As it is called "The President's Own" will appear at the East Stroudsburg Area Joint Junior and Senior High School auditorium on Wednesday, Sept. 27. The band will present a matinee performance at 1:15 p.m. (for students, grades 1 thru 12) and another performance at 8:15 p.m. for the public.

The Marine's Band Concert in the Poconos is sponsored by the East Stroudsburg Exchange Club.

Director of the band is Lt. Col. Albert Schoepper. He is assisted by Capt. Dale Harpham and Capt. James King.

Lt. Col. Schoepper, is hailed by music critics as a genius at program building. On each program he selects topnotch and versatile musicians from various sections of the ensemble to display their instrumental proficiency and individual artistry as sololists. He has been a member of the band since 1934.

This year the Marine Band celebrates the 163rd year of its founding—1798-1961. In its long history, only 19 leaders have conducted the Marine Band.

This is the only tour in which the Marine Band can participate this year, since the tour period is limited and only a comparatively few communities can be included on this tour.

The Daily Investor

Broker Is Responsible

By William A. Doyle

Q. You have explained the red tape and expense that a person who loses a stock certificate must go through in order to obtain a duplicate stock certificate. But what happens if a broker loses a customer's stock certicicate?

Suppose I am in Los Angeles. I call a broker and order him to sell some stock I own. He sells the stock on the New York Stock Exchange. I take the stock certificate to the local broker. He gives me a receipt and sends the stock certificate to New York, via air mail. The plane crashes. The stock certificate is destroyed. What happens?

A. If a broker loses a customer's stock certificate, it is then the broker's responsibility to obtain a duplicate certificate. The broker is then obliged to handle all the red tape and expenses, such as paying for the indemnity bond.

In a gory example such as you cite, you might never know the certificate was lost. You stopped being the owner of the stock the day the broker sold the stock for you. That "trade date" — the day your sell order was executed — was probably the day you ordered your broker to sell the stock.

At any rate, the trade date is listed on the confirmation slip you receive from your broker after he executes an order for you.

So, in this case, your broker would have to obtain a duplicate certificate in order to complete delivery of the stock you sold to the person who bought that stock.

Q. When I buy stocks and later decide to sell them, am I supposed to sell those stocks through the same broker through which I bought them?

A. If you have paid the full purchase price for the stocks, you sell them through any broker you please. Technically, you don't even have to have a broker buy or sell stock for you.

If you own 100 shares of XYZ Corp. common stock and find someone who wants to buy those shares, you two can handle the transaction between yourselves. You would, of course, have to take care of all the details of transferring the stock, paying transfer taxes, etc.

However, if you have not paid the full purchase price but hold the stocks in a margin account, you will have to settle up on what you owe before you can sell the stocks through any except the broker with whom you have the margin account.

Q. My husband and I own 400 shares of a stock jointly. The stock now has a market value of $34.50 a share. We have decided to transfer this stock to my name alone. Our broker says this will cost about $250, because of the "double transfer tax." We have never heard of a double transfer tax. Have you?

A. Nope. My arithmetic shows that the total transfer taxes and SEC fees on this transfer would come to no more than $21.90. Transfer taxes are payable by the person or persons out of whose name or names the stocks are being transferred.

It sounds as if that broker is trying to hit you with a commission (probably a double commission) for this. There's no reason for you to pay any commission. This is not a sale of stock. It's simply a transfer. The broker might be entitled to charge you a small service fee for handling the paper work — but not a commission.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.

Saylorsburg Native Writes Book Entitled 'God Is'

REV. Wilson H. Rinker, a native of Saylorsburg, is the author of a book entitled "God Is." Published by Vantage Press Inc., New York City, the 91-page collection of sermons reviews the various aspects of God as revealed to men's limited minds and experiences.

God as Love, as the Father, as Christ, as "the Boss," as Judge and God as an "Advertiser"—all are discussed in glowing words of faith and spiritual insight.

Throughout the book the reader will find nuggets of wisdom, anecdotes about people like himself, people who may be in trouble or in doubt.

Speaking directly, often colloquially, Rev. Rinker stirs his readers into a new awareness that our entire lives are dominated by God, whether we are fully conscious of it or not.

"Why are some of us no longer effective in life associations?" Rev. Rinker asks. "Because we are not allowing God to rule supreme in our lives. We witness quickly to secondary elements of life. We witness almost negatively to primary principles of living."

We must remember, the author reminds us, that God waits to lead men, and men learn to follow Him. "God contacts. Man responds. God in our life is life in our God."

Rev. Rinker received his Bachelor of Science in Education at East Stroudsburg State College and his Bachelor of Divinity at Western Theological Seminary, Holland, Mich.

A minister of the Reformed Church in America, he has served several churches in the Midwest, and has been president of the Classes of Central California, where he now lives and pastors the Reformed Church of Twain Harte.

Served Overseas

During World War II, he served a little more than three years' overseas duty in the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines and Japan. In addition to his pastoral duties, Rev. Rinker has been active in community-wide endeavors, among them: PTA president, Cub Scoutmaster, secretary-treasurer of Senora Pass, Calif., Lions Club, president of ministerial associations and substitute teacher in Michigan and California schools.

Book On Life Of Crawford Is Written

BOB Bahr, 20, of 74 Broad St., Stroudsburg, has written a book entitled, "A Man With A Vision." The book is the life story of Percy B. Crawford.

Bahr, a student of the ministery at Kings College, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., said he started securing information for the book two days after the death of Crawford.

"I felt that the Lord wanted me to undertake it," he added.

He spent eight months gathering information from various sources and people around the country and wrote the book in two and a half weeks.

After the book was written the next big problem was getting it published. He was firm in his belief that it should be printed. Bahr moved forward by asking and receiving donations. He even secured loans. "The money needed to publish the book came from some 30 people who, like himself, wanted to see the book in print," he said.

The story begins with Crawford's first home in Minnedosa, Canada, and moves to Los Angeles, Calif., and Philadelphia. Bahr brings to light the early childhood and Crawford's coming to the point in life where he realized he needed religion.

It tells of the founding of Pinebrook Camp, near Analomink, and many other undertakings of Rev. Crawford.

Some of the people responsible for information in the book are Jack Wyrtzen, Margaret Crawford, Ross Rhoads, Alex Dunlap, Jim Wiegand and Dr. Norman B. Kellow.

Bahr is married to the former Nancy Smith of Kunkletown RD 1. His prior residence was Newark, N. J.

He has, in addition to writing the book, been a guest speaker at various churches and meetings in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland.

The book is sold in Stroudsburg by B. H. Hostetter, Main St. for $1 a copy.
